Conclusions

- (Scope) Everything that touches a key is part of the framework
  - Specify appropriate security requirements
- Distinction between framework and profile is not clear
- Narrow down the target readership
  - Designers, operators, security architects
  - Should be possible to turn into actionable vendor requirements
- Needs to answer how to check compliance
  - Gather the “shalls” together in an appendix
  - All “shalls” need to be measurable
- (Section 11) Need clarity around what audit would look like
  - Should specify that threat modeling is needed
  - Need flexibility in how audit is done, don’t let this creep into compliance
- Section 3 in general
  - Too much motherhood/apple pie in section headers
  - Need better connection to the “shalls.”
  - Example:  COTS should be build vs buy to make this broader